

New Picture History of Annville

Working in partnership with the Friends of Old Annville, Arcadia Publishing has produced a fine pictorial history entitled Annville Township as part of its “Images of America” series. A part of the proceeds from the sale of each book benefits the Friends.

More than 225 historic pictures taken at locations along Main, Queen, Maple and other streets as well as at Lebanon Valley College fill 128 pages. Images from the archives of the Friends of Old Annville, from local residents, and from community groups serve as powerful testimonies to entire communities of ages past and the contributions they have made to the present. Many of the pictures have never been published before.

Street addresses provided in the captions allow the reader to engage the dynamics of history by comparing the past with the present. The block-by-block pictorial history incorporates information from walking tours spanning several decades.

Copies are available locally from the Friends of Old Annville for a discounted price $20.00. (Sales tax is included in price). Include an additional $5.00 if you'd like to have the book shipped to you. Otherwise, we will contact you regarding pick-up in Annville. Although copies may be ordered through online booksellers for $21.95 + shipping, orders placed through FOOA significantly benefit the organization.
